Walkout Set Tomorrow Afternoon

Kennedy Warning
Ignored; Goldberg
Calls Talks Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Flight engineers Sunday called a strike against Trans World Airlines, effective at 2 p.m., EDT, Tuesday, despite a warning by President Kennedy against a walkout.

In another effort apparently to halt the strike, Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg said officials representing the flight engineers union, the TWA Council of Air Line Pilots Association and the company have agreed to meet with him Monday morning.

Goldberg asked all the officials to make no further statements about the strike pending their meeting with him.

The Flight Engineers International Association is in a deadlocked dispute with Trans World, Pan American World Airways and Eastern Air Lines over the makeup of jet cockpit crews and has authorized strikes against all three but Sunday's action was limited to TWA.

TWA Carries 10% Of Load

R.A. Brown, flight engineers union president, said in a statement that, "Out of respect for the concern of the President over the balance of payments situation and our concern for the unemployment hardships which would be inflicted on a large number of airline employees it has been agreed to limit the strike to TWA."

TWA carries a little more than 10 percent of the travel to overseas points from this country. "The other carriers in the overseas field can more than absorb the passengers from TWA," Brown said. "In addition, the domestic carriers can easily handle TWA's domestic segments."

Plans are to continue operations on Pan American and Eastern, Brown said, "unless those companies wish to engage in an illegal lockout in the hope of achieving government intervention, seizure of the airlines and compulsory arbitration."

Federal Action Hinted By JFK

The decision to strike was made Saturday after a meeting of 400 flight engineers in New York City but it was not until Sunday afternoon that the union announced it would limit the strike to TWA.

President Kennedy warned the flight engineers at his news conference last Thursday that a strike would hurt the nation's welfare. He implied that steps might be taken by the government to halt the strike if one was ordered. The union has expressed willingness to arbitrate all issues — except the major one — a controversy over whether the third man in the crews of jet airliners shall be an engineer or a pilot.

TWA has about 600 engineers and a total of around 19,000 employees over all, making it the largest of the three lines involved in the dispute.

There was no immediate indication from TWA whether it would make any effort to maintain all or part of its schedules through use of supervisory personnel.

Ford, UAW Strive To Settle Walkout

DETROIT (UPI)—Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers union tried Sunday to settle a strike which has idled 50,000 workers and shut down all the firm's car assembly plants.

The two sides met for about 2½ hours before breaking off talks until 1 p.m. Monday. Neither side was optimistic that a settlement was near.

The nationwide shutdown was triggered by a UAW strike of 3,200 workers at the company's key Walton Hills, Ohio, stamping plant. The strike started June 6 and began forcing Wednesday of other plants last Wednesday.

Convicts Rebel, Set Pen Afire

Six Reported
Killed In Riot

MONTREAL (UPI) — Hundreds of convicts seized control of St. Vincent de Paul Federal Penitentiary Sunday and set it afire. Scores of guards and prisoners were injured in fighting which continued into the night inside the flaming maximum security prison.

Early unconfirmed reports said at least six of the 1,200 prisoners were shot and killed and from 50 to 60 prisoners and guards wounded. Some guards were reported to be held as hostages.

Army troops in full battle dress ringed the grey stone walls of the St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, located on an island about 20 miles from downtown Montreal. They were called in when prison guards and steel-helmeted Royal Canadian Mounted Police were unable to quell the uprising.

The riot, described by police as apparently "spontaneous," broke out about 3 p.m. EDT after a prison baseball game. Convicts grabbed kerosene and gasoline cans in the kitchen after overpowering a guard and ran through the half mile square prison area setting fire to buildings.

By nightfall, a newsman who flew over the area in a helicopter reported that at least 15 buildings were burning.

Some of the convicts were surrounded in one section of the prison and forced to lie flat on their faces. Hundreds of others, however, continued to run amok through the wrecked prison.

Smoke and flames rose from the prison walls. A bridge connecting the prison island to Montreal Island was barred to traffic. Hundreds of spectators were gathered at the Montreal Island end of the bridge. The bridge was closed not only to bar spectators but to prevent a possible mass escape.

Search For Red Raiders Pushed By Vietnamese

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Three Red guerrillas were reported killed Sunday in a relentless hunt for the band that wiped out an armored column, killing two U.S. officers and 15 Vietnamese.

Two companies of South Vietnamese troops were pressing the search in the jungles 30 miles north of Saigon. But they reported no major contact with the main force of 300 to 400 Viet Cong guerrillas, who engineered the ambush Saturday.

The guerrillas were known to be heavily armed. It took them but 15 minutes to wreck the seven-vehicle convoy, kill 17 and leave the other 20 soldiers in the convoy lying wounded on the road.

Never before had the Viet Cong struck with such force so close to Saigon.

As the hunt went on, three other large government operations were launched against the Viet Cong northwest, west and south of Saigon.

Hussein declared Faisal's downfall had been plotted because Nasser was jealous of the alliance of Jordan and Iraq and because this union threatened Egypt's ambitions in the Middle East.

The 26-year-old monarch filed these grave accusations against Nasser and the U.A.R. in his autobiography, published Monday, a king's story of nine turbulent years since he ascended the shaky throne of the Middle Eastern kingdom.

Hussein mounted an angry attack on Nasser's claims to Arab leadership, accusing him of fomenting strife and bloodshed in the Middle East.

German Reds Condemned By Adenauer

Bonn Leader Asks
World Turn Against Communist Regime

BERLIN (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer appealed to the world Sunday to turn "with anger and disgust" against the Communist regime in East Germany.

Speaking on the ninth anniversary of the anti-Communist uprising in East Germany, Adenauer also appealed to the Soviet Union for the release of revolt victims still jailed. Such a gesture, he said, would open up a new hope-filled era of negotiation.

Both the 86-year-old chancellor and Mayor Willy Brandt, 48, of West Berlin, his political rival, angrily condemned the shootings of Germans by East German guards at the Red wall dividing Berlin.

Reds Fire On Refugees

They spoke at a mass rally outside West Berlin's City Hall to mark the anniversary of the abortive East German revolt against communism in 1953.

In the early hours of the anniversary, East German guards fired at two men climbing over the wall to West Berlin, but missed. Three other shots, also presumably at people trying to escape, were heard at another point.

Ignoring the Communist regime's complaints that his presence was illegal and provocative, Adenauer flew to Berlin in a U.S. Air Force plane to take part for the first time in the city's observance of the national "day of Unity."

Adenauer Inspects Wall

After arriving, Adenauer visited the wall the Communists put up 10 months ago to stop the heavy flow of East Germans into West Berlin. Saturday night, West Berliners set bonfires visible to the East Germans as reminders that their uprising against communism is not forgotten.

People who visited East Berlin on this ninth anniversary said it was quiet there, with very few East Berliners on the streets and no evidence of any increase in police patrols.

As Adenauer and Brandt led the rally in West Berlin, the Red regime held a "National Congress" of 2,300 delegates as a show of support for communism.

Chicago Throng Of 116,000 Hears Billy Graham

CHICAGO (UPI) — Evangelist Billy Graham told a sweltering crowd estimated at 116,000 Sunday that there is a striking parallel between the ancient Roman empire and the modern United States.

Thousands were turned away from Soldier Field at what was thought to be the largest single revival meeting ever held in this country. Those "stepping forward" Sunday boosted to 17,130 persons making "decisions for Christ" during the 18-day Chicago crusade.

A plea went out for doctors and nurses to help care for those overcome by the 90 degree heat.

The climax of the crusade Sunday marked a total of 703,000 who turned out to hear Graham speak in his drive to reform the "city Billy Sunday couldn't shut down."

Steps Toward True Atlantic Unity Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A congressionally appointed citizens' commission said Sunday steps must be taken to make the Atlantic community a reality and they must be taken soon—even if this involves some yielding of national sovereignty.

Creation of a permanent high council and a high court of justice for the nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization were among the chief recommendations submitted to Congress by the U.S. Citizens Commission on NATO.

It expressed hope, too, that President Kennedy's plans for a trade partnership between the United States and the European Common Market will be realized and that this will become the nucleus of an Atlantic economic community open to all qualified nations.

In this connection, the commission reported and endorsed the Atlantic Convention's judgment "that a measure of delegated sovereignty in the Atlantic area should be transferred to an Atlantic community."

"Of prime importance in this connection is the mass trading area—larger than that contained within national boundaries—required for the efficient use of modern technology."

"The comparable economies of the Atlantic nations and their common heritage in ideas make expansion within this great neighborhood singularly appropriate. They allow, too, for the common military defense and common planning of assistance to developing nations with an appropriate division of the costs involved."

The commission was named by Congress in March 1961 to study means of achieving greater political and economic unity within the Atlantic community. It was headed by former Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and Undersecretary of State William L. Clayton.

Man Admits Slaying Of Student Actress

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A slender, 41-year-old father of two from Trenton, N.J., has confessed to the slaying last week of an attractive young student actress, state police reported Sunday.

The man, Leroy A. Harrison, was arrested Saturday night at his home in Hamilton Township, a Trenton suburb. Police said he admitted the slaying after three hours of questioning during which he first denied any knowledge of the crime.

The body of the victim, Phyllis Ann Jones, 24, of West Norriton, Pa., was found in a gravel pit near Whiting, N.J. last Sunday night. She was clad in a bathing suit, the halter strap of which had been used to tie her hands behind her back.

Harrison was convicted on a rape charge in 1949 in Mercer County, N.J., court. He told police he spent about 2½ years in state hospitals and later served two to three years in state prison.

Autopsy reports indicated Miss Jones had not been sexually assaulted and Harrison said he made no advances toward her. Police said the cause of death was the result of Miss Jones' having been smothered and strangled.

The announcement of Harrison's confession was made shortly before dawn at Princeton state police barracks. Harrison was then taken to Ocean County and authorities said he re-nacted the crime at the gravel pit where Miss Jones' body was found and on Long Beach Island where he said he first met the girl.

The suspect was then arraigned on a homicide charge in Lacey Township Municipal Court, Bayville. Magistrate William E. O'Connor Jr., ordered Harrison held without bail in the county jail at Toms River pending a hearing at a later date.

Harrison, father of two boys aged 11 and 5, was arrested Saturday evening at his home. He offered no resistance.

Dutch Pave Way For New Talks With Indonesia

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U.N. Acting Secretary-General U Thant announced Sunday the Netherlands has accepted in principle the proposals of U.S. diplomat Ellsworth Bunker for settlement of its dispute with Indonesia over West New Guinea.

On the record, that means the Netherlands now takes the same position as Indonesia on the Bunker plan and there is no reason the two should not resume talks with Bunker. The previous talks were broken off in March after only three days.

Thant cabled the word to Indonesian President Sukarno. He expressed hope negotiations under Bunker's auspices would be resumed without delay, and that hostilities could end once the territory as the Dutch withdrew over a period of not less than a year or more than two years. The high commissioner would transfer authority to the Indonesians over a one- to two-year period.

The two sides, under the Bunker plan, would agree to guarantee the rights of the Papuan people who live in New Guinea to self-determination, including a plebiscite. Finally, Indonesia and the Netherlands would agree to resume normal diplomatic relations, including settlement of such issues as Dutch property claims.

Indonesian paratroopers have landed in West New Guinea, which the Indonesians have claimed ever since they won independence from the Dutch in 1945, and there have been several sharp fights.

Secret Army To Help Build New Algeria

Accord Reached
With Moslems,
Broadcast Says

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — The European Secret Army Organization ordered its commandos Sunday to halt terror and destruction. The secret army pledged its cooperation to build a new Algeria.

In a dramatic close to more than a year of bloodshed and violence resisting Algeria's independence, the secret army called for "reconciliation of all, in honor and dignity."

The announcement was made in a pirate radio broadcast officially sanctioned and announced by French authorities. The broadcast said a preliminary accord has been reached with the Moslem Front of National Liberation—FLN—and that elaboration will follow.

Earlier, the Moslem nationalists and moderate, Algerian-born members of the secret army had announced a compromise to halt disaster in this tormented land.

A former medical student, Jean-Jacques Susini, had led the moderate secret army faction in the long talks with the moslems.

FLN Pledges Amnesty

In the name of the FLN, Dr. Dheufi Mostefai promised the Europeans a new future, a sweeping amnesty and participation in the maintenance of order.

"The door of the future is opening," he declared in a radio broadcast.

The secret army broadcast followed swiftly, confirming Mostefai's announcement that terrorism would halt by Monday.

The order to halt arson of public and private property becomes effective as of midnight Sunday, the broadcast said.

It called on secret army commandos to remain vigilant while ceasing their destructive action.

"We have been cheated many times in the past," the announcer said.

The broadcast was followed by two dramatic coded messages destined for terrorists. They said cryptically, "The lighters should not be lit tonight," and, "The swimming pools will remain full."

The secret army had waged its campaign of arson to leave only a scorched earth when the Moslems took over after voting for independence in a referendum July 1.

For the first time, the secret army broadcast was not preceded by the usual announcement "This is Radio France, the voice of French Algeria."

The announcer simply said "This is the radio of the Secret Army Organization."

Exodus Ordered Halted

The secret army communique called on the Europeans "To put all energy into the renovation of the Algerian fatherland." It said harmony and cooperation between Europeans and Moslems should be made "without outside interference."

This was a reference to the government of President Charles de Gaulle. The secret army long has been calling for direct talks with the Moslem nationalists without participation of France.

In a fantastic odd face that stunned even those used to this country's Mediterranean moods, the secret army ordered the Europeans to stay in Algeria instead of leaving and burning their homes.

"The exodus and scorched earth will give way to creative endeavor," the announcer said.

It was still not clear whether the announcement was the work of Algerian-born secret army politicians only or whether it had the backing of deserter colonels forming the organization's military command. Most colonels operate in western Algeria.

OAS Orders Terror Ended Flight Engineers Call Strike Of TWA

Walkout Set Tomorrow Afternoon

Kennedy Warning
Ignored; Goldberg
Calls Talks Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Flight engineers Sunday called a strike against Trans World Airlines, effective at 2 p.m., EDT, Tuesday, despite a warning by President Kennedy against a walkout.

In another effort apparently to halt the strike, Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg said officials representing the flight engineers union, the TWA Council of Air Line Pilots Association and the company have agreed to meet with him Monday morning.

Goldberg asked all the officials to make no further statements about the strike pending their meeting with him.

The Flight Engineers International Association is in a deadlocked dispute with Trans World, Pan American World Airways and Eastern Air Lines over the makeup of jet cockpit crews and has authorized strikes against all three but Sunday's action was limited to TWA.

TWA Carries 10% Of Load

R.A. TWA carries a little more than 10 per cent of the travel to overseas points from this country. "The other carriers in the overseas field can more than absorb the passengers from TWA," Brown said. "In addition, the domestic carriers can easily handle TWA's domestic segments."

Plans are to continue operations on Pan American and Eastern. Brown said, "Unless those companies wish to engage in an illegal lockout in the hope of achieving government intervention, seizure of the airlines and compulsory arbitration."

Federal Action Hinted By JFK

The decision to strike was made Saturday after a meeting of 400 flight engineers in New York City but it was not until Sunday afternoon that the union announced it would limit the strike to TWA.

President Kennedy warned the flight engineers at his news conference last Thursday that a strike would hurt the nation's welfare. He implied that steps might be taken by the government to halt the strike if one was ordered. The union has expressed willingness to arbitrate all issues — except the major one — a controversy over whether the third man in the crews of jet airliners shall be an engineer or a pilot.

TWA has about 600 engineers and a total of around 19,000 employees over all, making it the largest of the three lines involved in the dispute.

There was no immediate indication from TWA whether it would make any effort to maintain all or part of its schedules through use of supervisory personnel.

Signs Indicate Close Canadian Election Today

TORONTO (AP)—All signs point to an extremely close contest in Canada's national election Monday with the prospect that neither major party will win a clear majority in the House of Commons.

If it turns out this way, it probably will mean another election within a year.

Political experts and public opinion polls generally agree that the Liberal party, headed by Nobel Peace Prize winner Lester B. Pearson, will be running neck-and-neck with Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's Conservative party.

But they also agree that Canada's two splinter groups—the New Democratic and Social Credit parties—are going to pick up some seats. They would hold the balance of power if neither of the major parties got the 133 seats needed for an absolute majority in the 265-seat House.

This possibility was indicated in the latest Gallup Poll, showing 38 per cent of the voters favoring the Liberals, 36 per cent favoring the Conservatives and 25 per cent for the two smaller parties. This poll accurately indicated the one-sided vote in 1958, when the Conservatives dealt both the Liberals and the splinter groups a crushing blow.

Present membership of the House is 203 Conservatives, 51 Liberals, 8 New Democratic party and 3 vacancies.

Washington Welcomes Australia's Menzies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Australian Prime Minister Robert Menzies was accorded full military honors and a 19 gun salute when he arrived in Washington Sunday afternoon for a round of talks with President Kennedy and high administration officials.

Undersecretary of State George W. Ball welcomed Menzies on behalf of Kennedy. He said that it gave him great pleasure to welcome the prime minister of a country which had fought for those precise values which Americans hold dear.

he spent about 2½ years in state hospitals and later served two to three years in state prison.

Autopsy reports indicated Miss Jones had not been sexually assaulted and Harrison said he made no advances toward her. Police said the cause of death was the result of Miss Jones' having been smothered and strangled.

The announcement of Harrison's confession was made shortly before dawn at Princeton state police barracks. Harrison was then taken to Ocean County and authorities said he re-enacted the crime at the gravel pit where Miss Jones' body was found and on Long Beach Island where he said he first met the girl.

The suspect was then arraigned on a homicide charge in Lacey Township Municipal Court, Bayville. Magistrate William E. O'Connor Jr., ordered Harrison held without bail in the county jail at Toms River pending a hearing at a later date.

Harrison, father of two boys aged 11 and 5, was arrested Saturday evening at his home. He offered no resistance.

Man, 54, Refused Date By Girl, 17, Shoots Three, Self

SALINAS, Calif. (AP) — A 54-year-old man who couldn't get a date with a 17-year-old girl killed her mother, wounded the girl and his sister and shot himself fatally Saturday night, sheriff's investigators reported.

William Mateo Sahagun, long-time friend of the victims, and Gloria Ferrer, 34, are dead.

Victoria Ferrer, who often refused Sahagun's invitations, was hospitalized in satisfactory condition. But her sister, Theresa, 16, was in critical condition.

Officers said Sahagun came to the Ferrer house Saturday night and again asked Victoria for a date. When she refused, he left, but returned 15 minutes later with a .38-caliber pistol.

In nine shots, including one reload, Sahagun hit Mrs. Ferrer four times, Theresa once in the stomach, Victoria three times and killed himself with a shot in the mouth, said the murder report.

Find Convinces Officials Alcatraz Escapes Dead

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A floating plastic bag full of names and addresses has convinced the director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons that three missing Alcatraz convicts drowned in their carefully planned try for freedom.

But the Federal Bureau of Investigation isn't stopping its search for the trio of bank robbers until it finds a body.

The San Francisco Chronicle reported Sunday that the Coast Guard found the bag bobbing in San Francisco Bay near the Golden Gate Bridge, slightly more than a mile west of The Rock.

It contained a list of persons the missing men evidently intended to contact, said Prisons Director James Bennett in Washington, in confirming the find. "The theory is that they would

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U.N. Acting Secretary-General U Thant announced Sunday the Netherlands has accepted in principle the proposals of U.S. diplomat Ellsworth Bunker for settlement of its dispute with Indonesia over West New Guinea.

On the record, that means the Netherlands now takes the same position as Indonesia on the Bunker plan and there is no reason the two should not resume talks with Bunker. The previous talks were broken off in March after only three days.

Thant cabled the word to Indonesian President Sukarno. He expressed hope negotiations under Bunker's auspices would be resumed without delay, and that hostilities could end once the territory as the Dutch withdrew over a period of not less than a year or more than two years. The high commissioner would transfer authority to the Indonesians over a one- to two-year period.

The two sides, under the Bunker plan, would agree to guarantee the rights of the Papuan people who live in New Guinea to self-determination, including a plebiscite. Finally, Indonesia and the Netherlands would agree to resume normal diplomatic relations, including settlement of such issues as Dutch property claims.

Indonesian paratroopers have landed in West New Guinea, which the Indonesians have claimed ever since they won independence from the Dutch in 1945, and there have been several sharp fights.

U. S. Stages Another
Pacific Nuclear Test

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States exploded another medium-sized nuclear device in its Pacific testing area Sunday.

The Atomic Energy Commission and Department of Defense announced the detonation occurred about 11 a.m., Eastern Standard Time, in the Christmas Island area and involved an intermediate-range device dropped from an airplane.

Not have abandoned these names, which they obviously carried for contacts, unless they were drowning," he said.

The three — Frank L. Morris, John Anglin and his brother Clarence — were last seen Monday night, shortly before they fled to the beach of Alcatraz through vent pipes, across a roof and over a fence.

They had apparently worked many weeks chipping at their ancient cell walls with spoons to gain access to the vents.

Prison officials doubt that the three could safely swim through the treacherous tides and chilling waters of the bay to land, a mile and a quarter away. Fred T. Wilkins, associate federal prisons director, has flatly offered to bet his life's savings they drowned.

Secret Army To Help Build New Algeria

Accord Reached
With Moslems,
Broadcast Says

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — The European Secret Army Organization ordered its commandos Sunday to halt terror and destruction. The secret army pledged its cooperation to build a new Algeria.

In a dramatic close to more than a year of bloodshed and violence resisting Algeria's independence, the secret army called for "reconciliation of all, in honor and dignity."

The announcement was made in a pirate radio broadcast officially sanctioned and announced by French authorities. The broadcast said a preliminary accord has been reached with the Moslem Front of National Liberation—FLN—and that elaboration will follow.

Earlier, the Moslem nationalists and moderate, Algerian-born members of the secret army had announced a compromise to halt disaster in this tormented land.

A former medical student, Jean-Jacques Susini, had led the moderate secret army faction in the long talks with the moslems.

FLN Pledges Amnesty

In the name of the FLN, Dr. Dhewki Mostefai promised the Europeans a new future, a sweeping amnesty and participation in the maintenance of order.

"The door of the future is opening," he declared in a radio broadcast.

The secret army broadcast followed swiftly, confirming Mostefai's announcement that terrorism would halt by Monday.

The order to halt arson of public and private property becomes effective as of midnight Sunday, the broadcast said.

It called on secret army commandos to remain vigilant while ceasing their destructive action.

"We have been cheated many times in the past," the announcer said.

The broadcast was followed by two dramatic coded messages destined for terrorists. They said cryptically, "The lighters should not be lit tonight," and, "The swimming pools will remain full."

The secret army had waged its campaign of arson to leave only a scorched earth when the Moslems took over after voting for independence in a referendum July 1.

For the first time, the secret army broadcast was not preceded by the usual announcement "This is Radio France, the voice of French Algeria."

The announcer simply said "This is the radio of the Secret Army Organization."

Exodus Ordered Halted

The secret army communique called on the Europeans "To put all energy into the renovation of the Algerian fatherland." It said harmony and cooperation between Europeans and Moslems should be made "without outside interference."

This was a reference to the government of President Charles de Gaulle. The secret army long has been calling for direct talks with the Moslem nationalists without participation of France.

In a fantastic about face that stunned even those used to this country's Mediterranean moods, the secret army ordered the Europeans to stay in Algeria instead of leaving and burning their homes.

"The exodus and scorched earth will give way to creative endeavor," the announcer said.

It was still not clear whether the announcement was the work of Algerian-born secret army politicians only or whether it had the backing of deserter colonels forming the organization's military command. Most colonels operate in western Algeria.

U. S. Doctor Plans Clinics For Hong Kong's Needy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A doctor told Chinatown leaders Saturday night of plans to establish two clinics for the teeming needy of Hong Kong, one of the clinics on a Chinese junk.

Dr. James W. Turpin, a general practitioner, said he found the San Francisco Chinese enthusiastic about the opportunity to look after their own through his Project Concern.

The 34-year-old doctor also acquired a recruit, Dr. Dennis Wong, 28, an honor graduate of the University of California, Berkeley, and a registered pharmacist.

Also helping in the project, Dr. Turpin said, will be Paul Fleener, 28, and his wife, Shirley, 27, of Manhattan, Kan. Fleener, former program director of KSAC, Kansas State University radio station, will take care of distribution of food and clothing, set up recreation and education programs and assist in the clinic, the doctor said.

Both Dr. Turpin and Dr. Wong are taking their families when they sail for Hong Kong Aug. 10 on the P&O Orient Lines' Arcadia. The Turpins have four children, the Wongs two. Dr. Turpin's wife, Martha, 33, is trained in laboratory techniques, he said.

Woman, 74, Found In Ditch Succumbs

CHEVERLY, Md. (AP)—A 74-year-old woman, found semi-conscious in a Prince Georges County drainage ditch Saturday, died in a hospital here Sunday.

She was Miss Helen B. Ehle of Washington. The retired General Accounting Office clerk was discovered in the ditch by a young boy three days after she last had been seen at her home.

Pressman Hits Poet Laureate Appointment

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gov. Tawes was accused Sunday of placing "a powerful tool into the hands of the John Birch Society" by appointing Vincent Godfrey Burns as poet laureate of Maryland.

The charge was made in a letter to the governor from attorney Hyman Pressman, self-appointed watchdog of public affairs and critic of public officials.

The appointment made Friday, Pressman said, has given Burns "a cloak of dignity which will attach undue importance to (his) segregationist and Birch Society type utterings."

"If you appointed Mr. Burns in full knowledge that he had accused the Supreme Court of the United States of 'treason or its plain stupidity' because of its outlawing segregation in public schools and other decisions," the letter to Tawes said, "then you bear the full responsibility of your act."

"If, on the other hand, you had no knowledge of Mr. Burns' afore-said statement, then it is your duty to rectify your error by nullifying Mr. Burns' appointment as poet laureate."

Baltimore, Hopkins Hold Disaster Drill

BALTIMORE (AP)—The City of Baltimore and Johns Hopkins Hospital will test their disaster preparedness Monday with a make-believe explosion and flash fire killing 130 children.

The dress rehearsal, known as "Operation Honeycomb," will assume that the explosion has happened at an industrial plant in Baltimore's Patterson Park. The simulated casualties will be 85 children from the Villa Maria Children's Village and 25 Boy Scouts from the Immaculate Heart of Mary School.

Ambulances and firefighting equipment will race to the scene of the hypothetical disaster, but will not use sirens to avoid confusing the public. A silent alarm will launch the drill.

Coalition Soldiers Flown To Vientiane

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Neutralist and pro-Communist Pathet Lao troops flew Sunday into this capital of a fading government they had fought for 18 months.

They arrived as bodyguards for their leaders, who will be sworn in Monday in a new coalition regime the West hopes can keep this Asian kingdom neutral in the cold war.

There were 110 of the so-called neutralist troops of Prince Souvanna Phouma, an ex-premier who will be premier of the coalition.

Man Kills 'Witch' On His Second Try

PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — Two years after completing a prison sentence for trying to slay a woman he called a witch, a 55-year-old peasant was back in jail Sunday—accused by police of killing her.

Police quoted Salvatore Valenti as saying Caterina de Paola, 70, had bewitched him because he refused to marry her many years ago.

Killing her, police quoted him as saying, was the only way to gain freedom from her evil eye. Officers said Valenti used a sickle to hack the widow to death Saturday outside her home in the nearby village of Santa Flavia.

Valenti shot Mrs. de Paola in 1952. After months in a hospital, she recovered. A year later he was sentenced to seven years in prison for attempted murder. He told the court she dominated him and had put evil spirits in his body.

RFK Possible Picket Target

NEW YORK (AP) — Another demonstration may be held in Baltimore this week, but segregated restaurant service—recently outlawed by the City Council—won't be the target.

A group known as the Americans Right to Travel Committee plans to demonstrate against Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy on behalf of Negro newsman William Worthy Jr.

An advertisement placed in the window of a Greenwich Village weekly newspaper — "The Village Voice" — urged residents of New York to join in a caravan to Baltimore to picket the attorney general Friday when he addresses a meeting of the Negro Publishers Association there.

Daniel H. Watts, whose name is carried on the advertisement as secretary of the committee, said demonstrators from New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore were expected to join in the protest.

The group objects specifically to the federal indictment of Worthy on charges of entering the country illegally.

Worthy was indicted last April on charges of entering the United States through Cuba without a passport. He had made trips to Red China and Hungary and claimed he was a newsman on assignment from Columbia Broadcasting System, the New York Post and the Baltimore Afro-American at the time.

John V. Baldwin, 30, of Havre de Grace, who was injured in the crash, died at Harford Memorial Hospital Sunday afternoon. William Hanks, 38, of Havre de Grace, who was injured in the crash, died at Harford Memorial Hospital Sunday afternoon.

Peace Marchers Cross Bay Span

CENTREVILLE, Md. (AP) — A group of 16 peace marchers left here Sunday on the last leg of their 650-mile walk from Hanover, N. H., to Washington, D. C.

The five girls and 11 male members of the walkers plan to rendezvous Tuesday with two other groups of marchers on the Washington Monument and the Lincoln Memorial. The other peace walkers left Chicago and Nashville, Tenn., during the Easter holidays.

The walkers crossed the Chesapeake Bay Bridge to the bay's western shore shortly after noon. They are expected to arrive in Annapolis about 2-4 p.m. Monday and stage a demonstration near the U. S. Naval Academy.

While in Washington, the demonstrators against the nuclear arms race were to stage picketing and sit-down demonstrations in front of the Central Intelligence Agency headquarters, Atomic Energy Commission headquarters and the Pentagon.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 10 years old and love my parents very much. I hope they love me but I am not sure. Sometimes they act like they do and sometimes they act like they don't.

I have some cousins and my father thinks they are angels. Especially my cousin Gregory who is one year older than I am. Whenever I do something that isn't perfect my father says he bets Gregory would not do that.

I want my folks to like me because I have to live here for another 11 years at least. Can you print some advice for me like you do for older people so my father will like me better? I sure do thank you.

—CHARLES

DEAR CHARLES: I'll bet your father wouldn't trade you for all the Gregorys in the world. He just THINKS Gregory is so great because he sees him when he's on his best behavior.

Here is a poem. I hope you will tear it out of the paper and hand it to your dad. The person who wrote it calls herself "Zoa":

Fathers are large people,
Who frequently declare
That "other children" eat their meals
And sit straight in a chair.
"Other children" wash their hands
According to my father.
They never yell, or lose their hats,
Or fight, or be a bother.
"Other children," Father says,
Speak when they are spoken to,
They answer "please" and
"thank you"

The way I'm supposed to do,
I'm sorry for my father,
Just as sorry as can be.
He knows such lovely children,
And then got stuck with me.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Tom is a non-smoker. His first wife smoked heavily and it was a source of irritation to him. The argument which finally led him to divorce her was over cigarette butts.

Before we married I promised Tom I'd stop smoking, but I can't seem to get around to it. He didn't say much for a while but lately he has become irritable and sarcastic.

This is my first marriage and I didn't know husbands could be so bossy. We've been married less than a year and are forever quarreling. How can I make Tom

—LOVER OF FREEDOM

DEAR LOVER: Too bad your husband didn't insist that you quit smoking BEFORE he married you. It may have been the incentive you needed to help give those coffin nails. You're going to have a rough time now that you already have the guy.

Experts in the field of human relations say men who remarry after divorce have a tendency to repeat the same mistakes. Perhaps this information will help you get off Tobacco Road.

ANSWERS TO QUIZ BRIDGE

Q. 1—As South you hold:

♠K103 ♥54 ♦A10942 ♣854

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1♠ 2♥ Pass Pass

Double Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three spades. An effort should be made to reach game, and a mere return to two spades or a call of three diamonds will sound forced to partner, and he may be reluctant to take further action. A jump bid cannot be considered drastic in light of your failure to bid freely on the previous round.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

♠K107 ♥QJ9874 ♦5 ♣532

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1♦ Pass 1♥ Pass

2NT Pass 3♥ Pass

3NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Hearts, it must be with this hand, and you must, therefore, dutifully continue to four. This does not show any additional values, for you bid each time at the lowest level that it was possible for you to do so. Your repeated bids in hearts show a weak hand with length in hearts. This does not look like a promising hand for no trump.

Q. 3—As South you hold:

♠K7653 ♥AQ8 ♦AK82 ♣8

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1♠ Pass 3♦ Pass

3♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—We would be willing to assume at this time that your major suits were solid and consequently are concerned primarily with the number of aces. We would, therefore, bid four no trump (Blackwood) and, if partner showed two aces, we would risk a grand slam in spades.

Q. 4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠K7653 ♥AQ8 ♦AK82 ♣8

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1♠ 1♠ 2♠ 2♠

3♠ Pass 3NT Pass

4♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—The you had a very sound raise to start with, we recommend a mere return to five clubs. The bidding has made it clear that your ace of spades is not as impressive a card as you thought it would be from the beginning, inasmuch as it duplicates partner's void.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

♠K6 ♥AQ763 ♦AQ73 ♣96

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East
1♥ Pass 1♠ Pass

2♦ Pass 2♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—You have more values than you have previously shown and, since partner has rebid spades, you have normal support for that suit. One more try is recommended in the form of a raise to three spades.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

♠AJ95 ♥K5 ♦9852 ♣AQJ

What is your opening bid?

A.—This hand is just a shade light for an opening bid of one no trump, and it might be found convenient to open it with one club. The objection to bidding a spade is that a somewhat awkward rebid situation develops if partner responds with two hearts.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

♠982 ♥J ♦AJ6 ♣AK8542

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1♠ Pass 2♠ Pass

2♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—No very convenient rebid is available at the moment. A mere return to two spades could not be considered on grounds of inadequacy. A jump to three spades is certainly not to be entertained with such a meager trump holding. In preference to trying two no trump, we would temporize with a bid of three diamonds. If partner proceeds to three no trump, we relax. If he rebids hearts, we return to three spades. If he rebids spades, we take him to four.

Q. 8—As dealer you hold:

♠85 ♥AQ103 ♦AQ542 ♣3

What is your opening bid?

A.—The better strategic call is one heart rather than one diamond. If you open with one diamond and partner responds two clubs, your hand is not quite strong enough for the reverse bid of two hearts. Therefore, it is better to treat those suits as tho they were the same length so that a convenient rebid is provided over partner's expected response.

Hong Kong And The Refugees

Ever since the Jamestown pilgrims settled in this country, there must have been somebody on the dock whenever a ship arrived to ask the question: "Now that you have set foot on our shores, what is the first thing you would like to do?"

So, the traditional query was put to Deanna Chu, 23, the first refugee from Hong Kong to arrive in New York under President Kennedy's emergency refugee program. To the reporter, Miss Chu replied:

"I would like to turn on water faucets and watch the water run, both the hot and cold water at the same time."

Next question: "What were your first impressions of New York?"

Having come through a tunnel into New York (instead of by ship), Miss Chu's answer: "At first I thought it was one long tunnel" (natural reaction), "and then I was amazed by the tall buildings" (typical reaction), "and so much room in the streets for people to walk" (incredible reaction).

These replies, published in a New York newspaper, underline the conditions from which Miss Chu and her fellow refugees have come. In Hong Kong there is a water shortage because the Chinese communists have reduced the island colony's mainland water source, and the crowding of native quarters of Hong Kong is almost unbelievable.

It is these conditions that make life in the British crown colony so tenuous. The mainland Chinese could erase Hong Kong as the last small window into the prison that is Red China by two simple acts: cutting off all water to the island and allowing thousands of Chinese to flee across the border and thus smother Hong Kong.

The fear that this was what was being attempted lay behind the British authorities' decision to send back as many of the refugees as they could during the period when the Reds eased the gates open last month. It was a cruel decision but there seemed to be no other way.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Over-Production

It used to be said during the 1930's that there can be no over-production; there can only be under-consumption. This was the National Association of Manufacturers' explanation for the Depression in those days.

In a measure, there was some truth in the axiom but it does not fit our current picture because we are being drowned by international over-production. Factually, there can be both over-production and excessive consumption in some countries while others neither produce nor consume adequately. Generalizations do not fit the facts and figures. The so-called stockpiling was not started to set up reserves in times of plenty for times of war; agricultural stockpiling started as a means for withdrawing products from the market with the object of keeping up agricultural prices. We then applied the same doctrine to minerals and other commodities but the government used the excuse of stockpiling for the next war. We are now so over-produced that if we were forced to sell or to dump our surpluses in world markets, even to rescue the starving as some propose, we could, without much difficulty, start a universal depression; particularly in the currently prosperous countries.

But we are not the only over-producers. We not only over-expanded our own plant and equipment during World War II and the Korean War, but we rebuilt the industries of Japan, West Germany and other countries. We also aided the Communist countries to establish and expand their industries, particularly heavy industries. The result is that we have created more manufacturers than the world can consume goods for a payment. Thus, we give away machinery not only to replace destroyed industries but to create new ones in countries which never had any, diffusing the trade possibilities in known markets on the assumption that other markets will become available.

It may be true that the time may come when the present world capacity for the production of steel, now about 465,000,000 tons, will not be enough, but presently it is too much unless the United States or Soviet Russia undertakes the building of enormous public works like the great dam on the Nile, for which neither country will be paid, because Egypt has not the money to pay, and Egyptian cotton is not needed in such huge quantities as to meet Egypt's obligations. The Free World capacity is 342,000,000 tons; for the Communist nations, 123,000,000 tons. Communist capacity in 1957 was 80,000,000 tons; in 1961, 123,000,000 tons—a startling increase.

The question of over-production plagues the worker who is not being thrown out of employment because of automation but, in this country, either because of domestic over-production or because prices are determined internationally while costs are determined locally, thus making it difficult for the product of the American worker to compete with the product of the Czechoslovakian worker, the West German or Japanese worker, or even the British worker. A recession in the United States occurs when buying is postponed for whatever reason; a depression occurs when men are out of work.

Thus the American worker speaks of a 35 or a 32 hour week partly to get more wages but also to spread the work. Labor unions must see to it that their members have jobs or they lose their members who find compensatory work in other ways, if possible. This country cannot accept unemployment as inevitable.

This is a major national and international problem which cannot be postponed too long.

If we stop producing surpluses, we shall have an enormous unemployment problem and our workers will become a socially dislocated proletariat. If we continue stockpiling, we shall reach a condition of impoverishment so that there will be starvation amid plenty. If we worry too much about what the Europeans, Canadians, Japanese and others want us to do, we shall have no foreign trade. If we do not worry about them, they may succumb to social revolution from which we no longer have the strength to save them.

This situation has been developing since 1948 and is now in a critical state which requires a daring decision—which can as easily be wrong as right. This is difficult for most of our people to understand, for they assume that we make our own decisions through the President and Congress. That ceased to be so in 1917 when we joined in World War I.

Tax Cuts: President Must Make The Choice

By Joseph Alsop

The atmosphere of this overly excitable capital is beginning to resemble the Washington atmosphere in the winter slump of 1958.

Very few people seem to remember that glum moment in the Eisenhower administration. In deep fear of the political consequences of the 1958 decline in business, Vice President Richard M. Nixon was then moving heaven and earth to secure an immediate tax cut of at least $4 billion—and without being widely accused of creeping socialism, either.

President Eisenhower and the Treasury Department resisted the Nixon tax-cut arguments. Yet large, economy-stimulating appropriations were tolerated, if not exactly approved by the White House. The result, in 1959, was the largest budget deficit in American peacetime history.

What now recalls this disturbed moment in the past is the alarm that has been spreading through the ranks of the Democrats, ever since the stock market panic a fortnight ago. Like Nixon and his numerous Republican allies in 1958, increasing numbers of leading Democrats are intensely fearful of the decline in business, not just because hard times are hard on everyone, but more particularly because hard times are extra-hard on the party in power.

There is no doubt at all that this reasoning is valid. The throws of the economic dice this summer will heavily weigh the throw of the political dice next November.

In California, for instance, former Vice President Nixon is now rated the underdog in his race against Gov. Pat Brown, because of his seemingly insoluble problems on the extreme right wing of his own party. But if business and employment go down markedly before the autumn, the prospects will vastly improve for Nixon, and for every other Republican candidate all over the country.

As yet the Democrats who fear this sort of result are concentrated on Capitol Hill. The White House and the economic agencies of the Executive Branch show no signs of apprehension. But in the House and particularly in the Senate, the apprehension is rising very markedly.

The Senate's fears were communicated to the President on Tuesday, when Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, Sen. Robert Kerr of Oklahoma, and Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia met with him to talk about ways and means of getting the existing tax bill out of the log jam in the Senate Finance Committee.

The three Senators took this opportunity to tell the President that alarm was rising and that calls for strong action were being increasingly heard. Adding to the tax bill immediate tax cuts to stimulate the economy was mentioned as one action that might be taken. According to report, it could have been Nixon-in-1958 all over again, minus the emotional edge the Vice President then showed.

He reads the papers from back home assiduously, reads his mail avidly, and even takes periodic polls in an effort to determine the desires of his voters.

Recently, he mailed out a questionnaire on world problems, and to make sure that all views could be expressed he reserved a portion of the space for "further comment." One of his replies contained the following "comment."

"One thing I would like to know and also was told by many people. Why does the President and Congressmen allow the sausage makers to put so much salt in the sausage that you get sick of eating it. Why is there not a standard set for just so much salt put in the sausage. I think if some want, they can put some salt on if they want it salty. Salt is cheap to make weight in sausage."

In the place of blocks and blocks of row houses that had become slums over the year, new modern apartment houses, homes and business areas are rising.

A former resident of the area, who happened to be a photographer, began to take pictures of the changing scene. He photographed everything from abandoned buildings to junk heaps and the discarded personal effects left behind by the departed residents.

These included everything from broken teacups to abandoned rag dolls.

Air Conditioning A Boon To Ill Persons

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Now is the time to prepare for heat waves. Get an air conditioner or a good fan for the home, provided the purse can take it. The cost may be included in the medical expenses and deducted for tax purposes under certain medical conditions.

These devices improve sleeping, which means a better disposition and outlook for the next day. Air conditioning also is a boon to ill persons, especially victims of heart disease, asthma, and hay fever.

The body is capable of adjusting to ordinary changes in weather. When the mercury shoots up above 90 degrees, the heart works a little harder, to bring as much blood as possible to the skin for cooling purposes. This is not difficult for the normal organ, but may present a problem when it is handicapped by a leaky valve, enlargement, or inadequate coronary circulation.

Studies in New Orleans demonstrated that cardiac patients improve faster in an air conditioned environment. More and more hospitals are installing this system. The asthmatic breathes easier in dry air, more so when the unit contains an adequate filter to screen out dust and other offending agents.

There are filters and filters. Some do a better job than others with dust and pollen. The individual with asthma or hay fever should investigate the ability of the filter to screen out the agents to which he is sensitive.

The majority of window air conditioners and filters remove dust and other noxious particles from the air. Room filters will not do the job so long as a window is open. But no filter is of much value in reducing asthmatic symptoms if the person goes in and out of the air filtered room.

Whitney Puts Herald-Tribune And Sen. Symington In Awkward Spot

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Two parties are going to be very much on the spot shortly in the stockpile scandals. They are: sincere Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, who is in charge of stockpile probing; and the circulation-hungry New York Herald Tribune, whose publisher, John Hay Whitney, is up for investigation.

The reason they are on the spot is because Symington, who is related to Whitney, will have to decide whether to investigate; and the Herald Tribune will have to decide whether to headline the revelations about its publisher.

President Kennedy, who has been the butt of considerable criticism by the Herald Trib., will be on the sidelines.

Symington, a conscientious Democrat, is married to one of the top-flight Republican ladies of the country, Eve Wadsworth, granddaughter of John Hay, a private secretary to Abraham Lincoln and Secretary of State under McKinley and Teddy Roosevelt. John Hay Whitney, better known as Jock, publisher of the Herald Tribune, is a grandson of John Hay and a cousin of Mrs. Symington. The Symingtons' son served under cousin Jock when Whitney was Ike's ambassador in London.

How Hot Is The Spot?

Neither Senator Symington nor the editor of the Herald Tribune may entirely realize the spot in which they will soon find themselves regarding their cousin and publisher, but this column can give them a brief preview.

Jock Whitney, publisher of the Herald Trib., and perhaps the biggest single legitimate contributor to Eisenhower's campaign chest, has also been the biggest stockholder of Freeport sulphur which before Castro had extensive nickel holdings in Cuba.

During World War II, Freeport leased its Nicaro ore fields in Cuba to the U.S. government at a high royalty, but this high price is not an issue in the stockpile probe. What is an issue is the manner in which Whitney and his company used influence inside the Eisenhower administration to get new contracts.

What happened was that, with the Korean war, the Nicaro nickel fields in Cuba became once again important, and Stuart Symington, then in charge of stockpiling under Truman, asked his wife's cousin's firm, Freeport Sulphur, whether it was interested in reactivating the government's nickel plant in Nicaro, which had extracted ore owned by Freeport and had been closed down following World War II. Freeport replied that it wasn't interested.

Following this, General Services Administration, the government's over-all contracting agency, gave the Nicaro operating contract first to the Dutch Billiton Company, then to National Lead with Cuban partners. This was in 1951, during the last days of Truman.

Ike's Good Friend

But immediately after Eisenhower took office, Freeport Sulphur started an intensive drive to get back into the nickel production operation which it had previously turned down.

Whitney and Langbourne Williams, president of Freeport, went to the White House one week after the inauguration of the President whom Whitney had helped elect, and next day a curt note came from the White House to Jess Larson, General Services Administrator, accepting his resignation.

Larson, a Democrat, had been asked by ex-Gov. Val Peterson of Nebraska, then a White House assistant, to remain on the job for three months to help in the intricate job of government contracts. But Larson was the man who had put National Lead, rival of Freeport Sulphur, in charge of Nicaro nickel production, and 24 hours after Whitney's call at the White House, Larson's resignation was abruptly accepted.

Whitney and Freeport then proceeded to apply for a new contract to extract nickel from Moa Bay in Cuba and refine it in Louisiana. However, Howard Young, former president of American Lead and Zinc, then in charge of the Defense Mobilization Plants Administration, turned them down. The Korean War was heading toward the end, and Young estimated enough nickel was available in Canada.

Whereupon Whitney and Freeport went over Young's head and in April, 1953, met in the New York office of James Brownlee, Brownlee was on the three-man "Borrowing Authority Review Board" of the Office of Defense Mobilization with power to promote new plants. He was head of Frankfort distillers and a power in the Seagram's liquor empire. But more important from the viewpoint of Freeport, he was Jock Whitney's partner in the Whitney brokerage firm.

The Senate committee has now subpoenaed Freeport Sulphur's records of inter-office memos, and finds an interesting report of this meeting in Brownlee's New York office. It shows that Brownlee assured his Freeport friends that the government would be interested in new nickel production.

Th negative reply from Young, Brownlee said, "Can be considered obsolete and superseded. We are interested in your project and you should submit a new proposal."

This was just the start of a series of inside wire-pullings

which led to highly profitable

contracts for the company dominated by the publisher of the Herald Tribune and to considerable loss to American taxpayers.

More on this story will follow in an early column.

Press agents are the antennae of the syndicated columnist. They help him, and themselves, by drawing his attention to potential stories. The columnist accepts, or rejects, at his whim. Some of the more palatable material in this column has been inspired by public relations men.

Of course, the P.A. is mainly interested in having his client mentioned—he hopes—favorably. In effect, he acts as a news catalyst between the client and the newspaper. Sometimes the press agent invents news about his client, and it is at this point that the careful columnist and the press agent part company.

I have been writing for newspapers since 1929 and I can be betrayed once. Not more. Just once. When a public relations man misinforms me about a story, exaggerates or distorts, or withholds a fact because it might hurt his client, he gets one free ride. No more.

Now there is a new technique. It's the press agent critique. He waits until you publish something, and then tells you that you're wrong. It's a healthy exercise in semantics, except that it comes too late. Also it aggravates marblehead, who thinks he is God's gift to journalistic accuracy.

About a month ago, I wrote several columns from Miami. It has always been a favorite city. I lived there a little while when I was a teen-ager. It's a schizophrenic city with one of its faces turned brightly toward the tourist; the other is the grim one of the young economic colossus of the South.

So long as the columns are favorable to Miami, and Miami Beach, they are greeted by silence. Say a word about insolent policemen, or the dullness of the city between seasons, and the press agents come alive like a basket of cobras when the lid is lifted. For example, one of the recent columns stated that "the season is dead." It told how dead.

Cries of distress began to go up from the press agents. No one seemed to have noticed that I acclaimed Miami as a great summer resort. All the P.A.'s saw was "Dead Season in Miami." The anguish was heart-rending.

Harold Gardner, the Fontainebleau press agent, sent a telegram. Then a letter. "We were most distressed," he wrote. The we probably means Gardner and his boss, Ben Novack. "As adults, we have learned to expect certain inaccuracies from immature and inexperienced newsmen. This is not the case with you, and all of us here were most upset and hurt."

"We did turn away business at Easter, and have been running 98% occupancy since then." In the face of this note, I must concede that I was wrong and Mr. Gardner is right. No one will have much of a chance getting a room at a hotel doing 98%

of capacity business. I, for one, will not try.

Bob Neal, of the Key Biscayne Hotel, says that he is doing 98% of capacity. In May, Lew Price, who is director of publicity for the City of Miami, wrote a letter correcting my portrait of a sleepy town down south. "Not one room will be available next week in downtown Miami hotels," he wrote.

During one week in May, the Fontainebleau declined requests for 1,200 rooms. Mr. Price said, "Jim, I can't find a parking place on or near Flagler Street. And the jet liners are still flying in thousands daily. . . . On week-ends, the owners of the 20,000 registered boats in Dade County almost create traffic jams. . . ."

I spoke to Hank Meyer, who is director of Public Relations for Miami Beach, National Airlines, the Diplomat Hotel and other big corporations. "You're in trouble," he said. "I will not object to the column because there is a recommendation in it that people try Miami in the summer. Still, the portrait of a dead city is dead wrong."

I phoned Tom Ferris, vice president of General Development Corporation, a press agent on parole. "The heck with Miami," he said. "Let's go up to Port St. Lucie and shoot some lousy golf." Mr. Ferris has the world's only boomerang tee shot. No matter how far he hits it, the ball dies at his feet.

All of which convinced me that I am wrong. I made several tours of the city and the beach when my father was in the hospital. My eyeballs have betrayed me. Do not, under any circumstances, plan a vacation in Miami this summer. They're too busy. . . .

Hong Kong And
The Refugees

Ever since the Jamestown pilgrims settled in this country, there must have been somebody on the dock whenever a ship arrived to ask the question: "Now that you have set foot on our shores, what is the first thing you would like to do?"

So, the traditional query was put to Deanna Chu, 23, the first refugee from Hong Kong to arrive in New York under President Kennedy's emergency refugee program. To the reporter, Miss Chu replied:

"I would like to turn on water faucets and watch the water run, both the hot and cold water at the same time."

Next question: "What were your first impressions of New York?"

Having come through a tunnel into New York (instead of by ship), Miss Chu's answer: "At first I thought it was one long tunnel" (natural reaction), "and then I was amazed by the tall buildings" (typical reaction), "and so much room in the streets for people to walk" (incredible reaction).

These replies, published in a New York newspaper, underline the conditions from which Miss Chu and her fellow refugees have come. In Hong Kong there is a water shortage because the Chinese communists have reduced the island colony's mainland water source, and the crowding of native quarters of Hong Kong is almost unbelievable.

It is these conditions that make life in the British crown colony so tenuous. The mainland Chinese could erase Hong Kong as the last small window into the prison that is Red China by two simple acts: cutting off all water to the island and allowing thousands of Chinese to flee across the border and thus smother Hong Kong.

The fear that this was what was being attempted lay behind the British authorities' decision to send back as many of the refugees as they could during the period when the Reds eased the gates open last month. It was a cruel decision but there seemed to be no other way.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Over-Production

It used to be said during the 1930's that there can be no over-production; there can only be under-consumption. This was the National Association of Manufacturers' explanation for the Depression in those days.

In a measure, there was some truth in the axiom but it does not fit our current picture because we are being drowned by international over-production. Factually, there can be both over-production and excessive consumption in some countries while others neither produce nor consume adequately. Generalizations do not fit the facts and figures. The so-called stockpiling was not started to set up reserves in times of plenty for times of war; agricultural stockpiling started as a means for withdrawing products from the market with the object of keeping up agricultural prices. We then applied the same doctrine to minerals and other commodities but the government used the excuse of stockpiling for the next war. We are now so over-produced that if we were forced to sell or to dump our surpluses in world markets, even to rescue the starving as some propose, we could, without much difficulty, start a universal depression; particularly in the currently prosperous countries.

But we are not the only over-producers. We not only over-expanded our own plant and equipment during World War II and the Korean War, but we rebuilt the industries of Japan, West Germany and other countries. We also aided the Communist countries to establish and expand their industries, particularly heavy industries. The result is that we have created more manufacturers than the world can consume goods for a payment. Thus, we give away machinery not only to replace destroyed industries but to create new ones in countries which never had any, diffusing the trade possibilities in known markets on the assumption that other markets will become available.

It may be true that the time may come when the present world capacity for the production of steel, now about 465,000,000 tons, will not be enough, but presently it is too much unless the United States or Soviet Russia undertakes the building of enormous public works like the great dam on the Nile, for which neither country will be paid because Egypt has not the money to pay, and Egyptian cotton is not needed in such huge quantities as to meet Egypt's obligations. The Free World capacity is 342,000,000 tons; for the Communist nations, 123,000,000 tons. Communist capacity in 1957 was 80,000,000 tons; in 1961, 123,000,000 tons—a startling increase.

The question of over-production plagues the worker who is not being thrown out of employment because of automation but, in this country, either because of domestic over-production or because prices are determined internationally while costs are determined locally, thus making it difficult for the product of the American worker to compete with the product of the Czechoslovakian worker, the West German or Japanese worker, or even the British worker. A recession in the United States occurs when buying is postponed for whatever reason; a depression occurs when men are out of work.

Thus the American worker speaks of a 35 or a 32 hour week partly to get more wages but also to spread the work. Labor unions must see to it that their members have jobs or they lose their members who find compensatory work in other ways, if possible. This country cannot accept unemployment as inevitable.

This then is a major national and international problem which cannot be postponed too long.

If we stop producing surpluses, we shall have an enormous unemployment problem and our workers will become a socially dislocated proletariat. If we continue stockpiling, we shall reach a condition of impoverishment so that there will be starvation amid plenty. If we worry too much about what the Europeans, Canadians, Japanese and others want us to do, we shall have no foreign trade. If we do not worry about them, they may succumb to social revolution from which we no longer have the strength to save them.

This situation has been developing since 1948 and is now in a critical state which requires a daring decision — which can as easily be wrong as right. This is difficult for most of our people to understand, for they assume that we make our own decisions through the President and Congress. That ceased to be so in 1917 when we joined in World War I.

Whitney Puts Herald-Tribune And

Jock Whitney, publisher of the Herald Trib, and perhaps the biggest single legitimate contributor to Eisenhower's campaign chest, has also been the biggest stockholder of Freeport sulphur which before Castro had extensive nickel holdings in Cuba.

During World War II, Freeport leased its Nicaraguan oil fields in Cuba to the U.S. government at a high royalty, but this high price is not an issue in the stockpile probe. What is an issue is the manner in which Whitney and his company used influence inside the Eisenhower administration to get new contracts.

But immediately after Eisenhower took office, Freeport Sulphur started an intensive drive to get back into the nickel production operation which it had previously turned down.

Whitney and Langbourne Williams, president of Freeport, went to the White House one week after the inauguration of the President whom Whitney had helped elect, and next day a curt note came from the White House to Jess Larson, General Services Administrator, accepting his resignation.

Larson, a Democrat, had been asked by ex-Gov. Val Peterson

But Larson was the man who had put National Lead, rival of Freeport Sulphur, in charge of Nicaraguan nickel production, and 24 hours after Whitney's call at the White House, Larson's resignation was abruptly accepted.

However, Howard Young, former president of American Lead and Zinc, then in charge of the Defense Mobilization Plants Administration, turned them down. The Korean War was heading toward the end, and Young estimated enough nickel was available in Canada.

Whereupon Whitney and Freeport went over Young's head and in April, 1953, met in the New York office of James Brownlee. Brownlee was on the three-man "Borrowing Authority Review Board" of the Office of Defense Mobilization with power to promote new plants. He was head of Frankfort distillers and a power in the Seagram's liquor empire. But more important from the viewpoint of Freeport, he was Jock Whitney's partner in the Whitney brokerage firm.

The Senate committee has now subpoenaed Freeport Sulphur's records of inter-office memos, and finds an interesting report of this meeting in Brownlee's New York office. It shows that Brownlee assured his Freeport friends that the government would be interested in new nickel production.

The negative reply from Young, Brownlee said, "Can be considered obsolete and superseded. We are interested in your project and you should submit a new proposal."

This was just the start of a series of inside wire-pullings which led to highly profitable contracts for the company dominated by the publisher of the Herald Tribune and to considerable loss to American taxpayers. More on this story will follow in an early column.

For example, one of the recent columns stated that "the season is dead." It told how dead.

Cries of distress began to go up from the press agents. No one seemed to have noticed that I acclaimed Miami as a great summer resort. All the P.A.'s saw was "Dead Season in Miami." The anguish was heart-rending.

Harold Gardner, the Fontainebleau press agent, sent a telegram. Then a letter. "We were most distressed," he wrote. The we probably means Gardner and his boss, Ben Novack. "As adults, we have learned to expect certain inaccuracies from immature and inexperienced newsmen. This is not the case with you, and all of us here were most upset and hurt."

"We did turn away business at Easter, and have been running 98% occupancy since then." In the face of this note, I must concede that I was wrong and Mr. Gardner is right. No one will have much of a chance getting a room at a hotel doing 98%

of capacity business, I, for one, will not try.

Bob Neal, of the Key Biscayne Hotel, says that he is doing 98% of capacity. In May, Lew Price, who is director of publicity for the City of Miami, wrote a letter correcting my portrait of a sleepy town down south. "Not one room will be available next week in downtown Miami hotels," he wrote.

During one week in May, the Fontainebleau declined requests for 1,200 rooms, Mr. Price said. "Jim, I can't find a parking place on or near Flagler Street. And the jet airliners are still flying in thousands daily. . . . On week-ends, the owners of the 20,000 registered boats in Dade County almost create traffic jams. . . ."

I spoke to Hank Meyer, who is director of Public Relations for Miami Beach, National Airlines, the Diplomat Hotel and other big corporations. "You're in trouble," he said. "I will not object to the column because there is a recommendation in it that people try Miami in the summer. Still, the portrait of a dead city is dead wrong."

I phoned Tom Ferris, vice president of General Development Corporation, a press agent on parole. "The heck with Miami," he said. "Let's go up to Port St. Lucie and shoot some lousy golf." Mr. Ferris has the world's only boomerang tee shot. No matter how far he hits it, the ball dies at his feet.

All of which convinced me that I am wrong. I made several tours of the city and the beach when my father was in the hospital. My eyeballs have betrayed me. Do not, under any circumstances, plan a vacation in Miami this summer. They're too busy. . . . (King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Air Conditioning A Boon To Ill Persons

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Now is the time to prepare for heat waves. Get an air conditioner or a good fan for the home, provided the purse can take it. The cost may be included in the medical expenses and deducted for tax purposes under certain medical conditions.

These devices improve sleeping, which means a better disposition and outlook for the next day. Air conditioning also is a boon to ill persons, especially victims of heart disease, asthma, and hay fever.

The body is capable of adjusting to ordinary changes in weather. When the mercury shoots up above 90 degrees, the heart works a little harder, to bring as much blood as possible to the skin for cooling purposes. This is not difficult for the normal organ, but may present a problem when it is handicapped by a leaky valve, enlargement, or inadequate coronary circulation.

Studies in New Orleans demonstrated that cardiac patients improve faster in an air conditioned environment. More and more hospitals are installing this system. The asthmatic breathes easier in dry air, more so when the unit contains an adequate filter to screen out dust and other offending agents.

There are filters and filters. Some do a better job than others with dust and pollen. The individual with asthma or hay fever should investigate the ability of the filter to screen out the agents to which he is sensitive.

The majority of window air conditioners and filters remove dust and other noxious particles from the air. Room filters will not do the job so long as a window is open. But no filter is of much value in reducing asthmatic symptoms if the person goes in and out of the air filtered room.

Try And Stop Me

To the surprise of everybody at a recent stupendous, all-star benefit performance, the hit of the evening was scored by a miniature talking poodle who brought down the house with a series of superb imitations and snappy new jokes. While the applause of the audience was at its height, however, a large dog shot out of the wings, grabbed the triumphant poodle by the scruff of the neck and pulled him off the stage.

"Sorry, folks," yelled the poodle as he disappeared into the wings. "It's my mother. She always wanted me to be a doctor."

The robber grabbed the receiver and heard an annoyed voice complain, "This is police headquarters, Lem. Will you kindly get your foot off the pedal that rings that fool new alarm of yours over here?"

Stay High-Style And Dry — In Laminates

Whatever your travel plans — abroad via the high seas, to work via the commuter special or to shop via the family car — you should like wearing the new laminates. They've traveled a long way, too, from the first water-repellent raincoat that made every woman look like a secret agent.

More and more new fabrics are being laminated this season, then designed, cut and tailored for high style. There's wool jersey, Orlon acrylic and wool combinations, seersucker teams of triacetate, cotton and nylon, blends of rayon, cotton and silk. And there's denim, sturdy cotton mated with Arnel triacetate, so easy to dress up for city-hopping, to dress down for casual wear.

These lightweight laminates are being offered in coats, raincoats, and suits with special appeal for travelers, for all of them resist wrinkles as well as weather.

It's these two talents — plus a third — that will make them popular, however, with all women who are on the go (and what woman isn't, these days?). That third talent?—they don't look like rainwear at all. From shape to important dressmaker detailing, they're geared to garb a girl on all sorts of occasions, rain or shine!

Probably the most exciting feature of these laminates is their price, moderate enough for almost every budget, even the most modest. In fact, considering its practicality, a laminated coat or suit seems to be one item a woman can't afford to be without!

If you decide to take one on your next tour, take this suggestion, too. Coordinate the rest of your travel wardrobe around your laminate, in both mood and color—because, no matter what other clothes you bring along, you'll find your laminate is your favorite choice most of the time with its remarkable way of making you look and feel crisp and comfortable.

With vacation fun looming closer on the calendar and with a summery sun starting to shine, you'll want your complexion to be its prettiest. That's why you should start regular protective care now, the kind I describe in my booklet, "Secrets of Skin Care." Write today for your copy (address me, John Robert Powers, c/o this newspaper), enclosing 10c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The present City Administration's program of Progress with Economy

Has saved you money..

Tomorrow, you, the citizens of Cumberland will elect a mayor and four councilmen to serve you for the next four years. Every eligible voter is urged to cast his ballot, and before voting each should review the record of the present administration. Some of the major programs of progress with economy of this administration are as follows:

1. Adopted necessary ordinances and hired a firm of professional planners who are now engaged in making plans for the revitalization of Cumberland. During the course of this plan, many projects will be undertaken by the City moving toward transformation of Cumberland into a modern city. Federal and State funds have been obtained for this undertaking, and will also be available for many other projects to be adopted by the City in years to come.
2. Purchased and installed a modern chlorine machine and had plans prepared for other improvements at the filtration plant, which when completed will give Cumberland one of the safest and most modern water systems in the country.
3. Installed new mercury vapor lights in the central business district and on Virginia Avenue.
4. Purchased for the recreation department a large tract of land near Constitution Park which can be used for expansion when necessary.
5. Constructed an ice skating rink on a portion of the old canal, which can also be used for various other activities of the recreation department.
6. A regulation baseball field with necessary dugouts, bleachers, etc. is in the process of being constructed near the sewage treatment plant. Cumberland has been without such a ball field since the old mid-city ball park was torn down.
7. Purchased land in Goethe Street Addition where a little league ball field and recreation area will be located.
8. Tennis courts were constructed in Constitution Park and additional sites for tennis courts are being secured.
9. Passed a new fire code and an urban renewal agency ordinance, and reactivated the Board of Health.
10. Purchased two new fire trucks and an emergency fire unit. In addition, police cruiser cars are of the latest models. All departments of the City have adopted a policy of replacing worn-out and antiquated equipment. This policy has resulted in the reduction of high maintenance costs and in the City having first line equipment in the various departments.
11. Transferred the Cumberland Library to the County, which has made a better facility available to more people, and has saved the City more than $25,000 per year.
12. Devoted thousands of hours to seeking workable solutions for the City's economic and administrative problems, some of which in the past have seemed almost beyond solution.

IF YOU, THE VOTER, FEEL THAT CUMBERLAND NEEDS THIS KIND OF RESPONSIBLE LEADERSHIP DURING THE NEXT FOUR YEARS . . .

VOTE FOR and RE-ELECT

The present City Administration's program of Progress with Economy

Has saved you money..

Tomorrow, you, the citizens of Cumberland will elect a mayor and four councilmen to serve you for the next four years. Every eligible voter is urged to cast his ballot, and before voting each should review the record of the present administration. Some of the major programs of progress with economy of this administration are as follows:

1. Adopted necessary ordinances and hired a firm of professional planners who are now engaged in making plans for the revitalization of Cumberland. During the course of this plan, many projects will be undertaken by the City moving toward transformation of Cumberland into a modern city. Federal and State funds have been obtained for this undertaking, and will also be available for many other projects to be adopted by the City in years to come.
2. Purchased and installed a modern chlorine machine and had plans prepared for other improvements at the filtration plant, which when completed will give Cumberland one of the safest and most modern water systems in the country.
3. Installed new mercury vapor lights in the central business district and on Virginia Avenue.
4. Purchased for the recreation department a large tract of land near Constitution Park which can be used for expansion when necessary.
5. Constructed an ice skating rink on a portion of the old canal, which can also be used for various other activities of the recreation department.
6. A regulation baseball field with necessary dugouts, bleachers, etc. is in the process of being constructed near the sewage treatment plant. Cumberland has been without such a ball field since the old mid-city ball park was torn down.
7. Purchased land in Goethe Street Addition where a little league ball field and recreation area will be located.
8. Tennis courts were constructed in Constitution Park and additional sites for tennis courts are being secured.
9. Passed a new fire code and an urban renewal agency ordinance, and reactivated the Board of Health.
10. Purchased two new fire trucks and an emergency fire unit. In addition, police cruiser cars are of the latest models. All departments of the City have adopted a policy of replacing worn-out and antiquated equipment. This policy has resulted in the reduction of high maintenance costs and in the City having first line equipment in the various departments.
11. Transferred the Cumberland Library to the County, which has made a better facility available to more people, and has saved the City more than $25,000 per year.
12. Devoted thousands of hours to seeking workable solutions for the City's economic and administrative problems, some of which in the past have seemed almost beyond solution.

IF YOU, THE VOTER, FEEL THAT CUMBERLAND NEEDS THIS KIND OF RESPONSIBLE LEADERSHIP DURING THE NEXT FOUR YEARS . . .

Nicklaus Defeats Palmer In Playoff To Capture U.S. Open Title

Jack Fires 71 To Capture $17,500 Prize

First Pro To Win In Initial Year; Ending Unusual

By WILL GRIMSLEY

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP)—Jack Nicklaus, a robust 200-pounder who strangles a course with sheer brute strength, won the 62nd National Open Golf Championship in an 18-hole playoff Sunday as the miracle string ran out for the great Arnold Palmer. Nicklaus fired a par 71, Palmer 74.

The head-to-head battle over the rolling Oakmont Country Club course ended in a state of wild confusion, with Palmer taking a double bogey 6 on the final hole and Nicklaus, after being conceded a putt, being forced to return to the green and hole out from about 3 feet.

Nicklaus, with a two-stroke lead coming up to the 462-yard finishing hole, hooked his tee shot into the deep rough where he had an almost unplayable lie.

Chops Out Safely

He had to chop out safely short of the green from where he played an excellent wedge shot about 15 feet away from the cup.

Palmer, meanwhile, was compounded the miseries which had plagued him most of the day.

With a chance possibly to get even, he hit a weak approach that stopped in the rough bordering a trap well below the green.

His chip was well-directed but too strong and rolled to the back edge of the green, 12 feet away.

Nicklaus ran his putt for a par 3 feet past the cup, giving Palmer an opportunity to apply the pressure if he could hole for his par.

But, Arnold, too, was strong and when he tapped his next putt short of the cup, he picked up the ball and conceded.

The finishing scores were announced erroneously by Joe Dey, executive director of the U.S. Golf Association, stepped in and ordered Nicklaus to replace the ball and putt out.

Foils Palmer Bid

The upset victory for the 22-year-old rookie professional from Columbus, Ohio, foiled Palmer's bid for a professional "grand slam." The Latrobe, Pa., strong boy had won the Masters earlier this year and had his sights set on the U.S. and British Opens and the U.S. PGA—a sweep never accomplished.

The triumph was worth $17,500 to Nicklaus ($15,000 first prize and bonus of $2,500), a pro for less than a year, and it boosted his year's money winnings to $45,698, already the most any first year man ever won on the rugged tour.

It was the Columbus youngster's second big paycheck in as many weeks. He won $10,000 for finishing second last week in the Golf Classic at Upper Montclair, N.J.

Palmer collected $10,250 for second place, also including a playoff bonus of $2,500, and boosted his year's earnings to $70,581.66, leading all professionals.

First To Win

Nicklaus becomes the first man ever to win the U.S. Open his first year in money ranks and he is one of the youngest ever to take the toughest of all golf events.

NICKLAUS WINS OPEN—Jack Nicklaus, 22-year-old Tucson, Ariz., golfer, who turned professional only last year, hugs his wife after he won the National Open Golf Championship yesterday in a playoff against Arnold Palmer at the Oakmont (Pa.) Country Club. Nicklaus won by three strokes and took first prize of $17,500. (AP Photofax)

Dodgers Trim Houston, 6-2, Before 47,397

Snap Losing Skein; Tom Davis Homers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers came from behind on a three-run homer by Tom Davis in the sixth inning Sunday and broke a three-game losing streak by defeating Houston 6-2 before 47,397.

The Dodgers, who had made only six runs in their five previous games, scored five times in the sixth.

Tom Davis hit his 12th homer of the season. Davis, the major league leader in runs batted in, has 68 RBIs in 66 games.

Foils Palmer Bid

The upset victory for the 22-year-old rookie professional from Columbus, Ohio, foiled Palmer's bid for a professional "grand slam."

The Latrobe, Pa., strong boy had won the Masters earlier this year and had his sights set on the U.S. and British Opens and the U.S. PGA—a sweep never accomplished.

The triumph was worth $17,500 to Nicklaus ($15,000 first prize and bonus of $2,500), a pro for less than a year, and it boosted his year's money winnings to $45,600, already the most any first year man ever won on the rugged tour.

It was the Columbus youngster's second big paycheck in as many weeks. He won $10,000 for finishing second last week in the Golf Classic at Upper Montclair, N.J.

Palmer collected $10,250 for second place, also including a playoff bonus of $2,500, and boosted his year's earnings to $70,581.66, leading all professionals.

First To Win

Nicklaus becomes the first man ever to win the U.S. Open his first year in money ranks and he is one of the youngest ever to take the toughest of all golf events.

Oakland's pace-setting tossers padded their Town and Country Softball League lead yesterday by sweeping a pair of games from Swallow Falls, 6-0 and 10-1, while runner-up White Rock was idle.

The victories were the 10th and 11th of the season for Oakland.

Kitzmiller scored its initial victory of the campaign by knocking off National Guard, 16-14, in a slugfest in the first of two games yesterday at Kitzmiller.

The Guard bounded back to cop the nightcap, 10-4, to hand Kitzmiller its 11th setback. Ken Metheny was the winner in the first game, but lost the second to make his National Guard pitching record 3-4.

Dick Reckner and Paul Eaton pitched Loch Lynn to a pair of wins over Crellin on the latter's diamond yesterday. Loch Lynn rallied for two runs in the seventh to win the opener, 4-3, then pounded out 12 hits for a 15-3 triumph in the second game. Dick Humberson lost both decisions to bring his pitching mark to 3-7 for the year. The results:

ORDER OF PUBLICATION
In the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, William K. McMannis vs. Martha Ann McMannis. No. 26858 Equity.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce. A VINCILO MATRIMONI by the Complainant, William K. McMannis, from the Defendant, Martha Ann McMannis. The Bill of Complaint states that the Complainant and the Defendant were married on June 10, 1950, at Augusta, Virginia; that they lived together as man and wife until on or about May 2, 1959; that the Complainant and the Defendant have voluntarily lived separate and apart for more than eighteen months prior to the filing of the Bill of Complaint, and such separation is beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation; that two children were born of the marriage, which children now reside with the Defendant; that the Complainant has been a resident of the State of Maryland for more than one year prior to the filing of this Bill of Complaint; that the Defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland and her address is Hyndman, Pennsylvania.

It is thereupon this 14th day of June, 1962, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, sitting in Equity, Ordered, that the Complainant, by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in the City of Cumberland, Allegany County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 16th day of July, 1962, giving notice of the object and substance of this Bill of Complaint to the said absent, non-resident Defendant, warning her to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor on or before the 17th day of August, 1962, to show cause, if any she may have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

True Copy: Test: Joseph E. Boden, Clerk. Adv. N-June 18-25-July 2-9.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION
In the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, William K. McManis vs. Martha Ann McManis. No. 26858 Equity.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONI by the Complainant, William K. McManis, from the Defendant, Martha Ann McManis.

The Bill of Complaint states that the Complainant and the Defendant were married on June 10, 1950, at Augusta, Virginia; that they lived together as man and wife until on or about May 2, 1959; that the Complainant and the Defendant have voluntarily lived separate and apart for more than eighteen months prior to the filing of the Bill of Complaint, and such separation is beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation; that two children were born of the marriage, which children now reside with the Defendant; that the Complainant has been a resident of the State of Maryland for more than one year prior to the filing of this Bill of Complaint; that the Defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland and her address is Hyndman, Pennsylvania.

It is thereupon this 14th day of June, 1962, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, sitting in Equity, ordered, that the Complainant, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in the City of Cumberland, Allegany County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 16th day of July, 1962, giving notice of the object and substance of this Bill of Complaint to the said absent, non-resident Defendant, warning her to be and appear in the Court, in person or by solicitor on or before the 17th day of August, 1962, to show cause, if any she may have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Candidates To Make Final Appeals Today

Spirited Election Being Predicted

Last-minute appeals will be made today by candidates in preparation for tomorrow's general municipal election. Political observers are predicting that the vote will be heavy, in contrast to the June 5 primary, as a result of the Council-Manager referendum and spirited campaigns by candidates who are proven vote-getters. The ballot will be led by the question—the proposed Council-Manager charter amendment, and “Yes” or “No” votes will be cast.

Candidates are Earl D. Chaney and J. Edwin Keech, for Mayor, and Philmore F. Fleming, Frederick J. Hill, George O. Hollar, William V. Keegan, G. Ray Light, Lucile Roeder, Keith T. Sisk and George H. Tederick, for Council.

Polls will be open tomorrow from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. and results should be available by 9 p.m.

Only 5,172 voters turned up for the June 5 primary election for a 49.4 per cent turnout of the 10,468 who were eligible to vote.

But in the 1958 general election, 8,131 of the 11,811 qualified voters turned out to elect the incumbent Mayor and Council and to defeat a proposal to sell a $500,000 urban development bond issue.

The Council-Manager question is also expected to boost participation in the election.

This will be the third referendum on the proposal sponsored by the Junior Association of Commerce, which lost by 56 votes in 1949 and about 1,500 votes in 1952.

Dr. A. J. Mirkin Honored For Work In Auto Safety

Dr. Abraham J. Mirkin, prominent Cumberland surgeon, is one of 12 American medical doctors who have received Medical Tribune Auto Safety Honor Certificates for their “life-saving achievement in the service of health.”

Dr. Mirkin and the 11 other doctors were nominated for the first Medical Tribune auto safety awards. Winners of the top awards are Dr. Fletcher D. Woodward of Charlottesville, Va., and the Indiana State Police.

They were honored for contributions by an individual physician and by an organization enlisting the cooperation of medicine. The Medical Tribune, the only independent weekly medical newspaper in the United States, established these awards as part of its campaign to alert physicians to their roles in reducing highway deaths and injuries.

Dr. Mirkin has been a prime mover in many aspects of highway safety including the importance of seat belts in automobiles. He is past president of the American Association for Automotive Medicine, a member of the American Medical Association's committee on medical aspects of automobile injuries and deaths, chairman of the medical advisory committee of Sports Car Club of America and medical director of the Sebring, Fla., grand prix of endurance for sports cars.

Last year, the Cumberland surgeon contributed a guest editorial to the Medical Tribune, entitled “A Lesson From Auto Racing.” In that editorial he stressed that virtually all safety devices now used by racing drivers have been forced upon them as prerequisites for competing on the track. The fact that these devices have materially reduced fatalities and serious injuries is a happy concomitant outcome of a program of compulsory safety enforcement, he writes.

“The experience of motor racing must be applied to everyday driving. All automobiles put in dealer showrooms should be engineered to withstand collision forces. All autos sold to the public should have built-in restraining devices and other safety features with proved value to minimize disfigurement, crippling and death. The public should have no choice concerning the safety of the vehicle it buys,” he wrote.

A talk which Dr. Mirkin gave last year entitled “Auto Driving Fitness and the Physical Equation” at a meeting of the National Safety Congress has been reprinted by the National Safety Council.

In that address, Dr. Mirkin pointed out that when a disease kills almost 40,000 people a year and effects them physically to the extent of 4,500,000 to 5,000,000 more annually, it is important for physicians to become interested in it.

Physicians have been primarily interested in automobile accidents from the standpoint of treatment of casualties and rehabilitation. In the last 11 or 12 years, physicians have been looking upon automobile accidents as a preventive disease. He then goes on to explain that physicians should refuse to permit certain of their patients with ailments to drive automobiles.

Broken Valve Interrupts Work At Kelly

A broken water line valve yesterday caused an interruption in the work schedule at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

An official of the Kelly plant said the third shift (11 p.m. to 7 a.m.) was notified not to report for work last night because of the lack of sufficient water for plant operation.

However, the work schedule in all departments was expected to begin with the 7 a.m. shift today, the company spokesman said.

G. Ray Light, water commissioner, said the broken valve was just outside the Kelly plant, and that city workmen were expected to complete the repairs sometime last night.

'Scavenger Hunt' Finds Some Maryland History

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Do you get a kick out of scavenger hunts?

If so, you might enjoy a University of Maryland history course which encourages treasure hunts and historical sleuthing by the students.

The off-campus course on the history of Maryland, taught by Dr. Verne E. Chatelain, has resulted in important “finds” during projects outside the classroom.

The latest two documents were uncovered this spring by Mrs. Helen Hinkle of Cumberland, who didn't even take the course but was helping a neighbor, Mrs. Joseph Massara, do some research on the Flintstone area of Allegheny County.

Benefits Due In Some WW I Death Cases

The Washington Veterans Benefits Office is checking 1,300 World War I death cases to determine whether or not additional insurance benefits are payable to beneficiaries, or to the estate of the deceased veterans, according to F. E. Quinn, manager of Veterans Administration Regional Office, Baltimore.

The survey will affect only those cases where the deceased veteran carried United States government life insurance or yearly renewable term insurance, Mr. Quinn said.

When either insurance was matured by a finding that the veteran was permanently and totally disabled, he was entitled to monthly disability installments of insurance. These installments were based on the net amount of insurance in force at the time of maturity.

If there was a loan, a lien or other indebtedness outstanding against the insurance on the date of maturity, reduced installments of disability benefits were paid by VA on the basis of the net amount of insurance in force. Monthly payments at the reduced amount were continued, regardless of how many installments were paid, during the veteran's lifetime.

The VA recently has determined that the amount of the indebtedness existing against the policy on the date the insured became permanently and totally disabled, was liquidated upon payment of 240 installments to the insured.

Accordingly, this ruling determines that the monthly rate of disability installments to the veteran should have been increased commencing with the 241st installment.

Where the deceased veteran carried USGLI, the amount of such difference will be paid to his beneficiary, provided the beneficiary survived the insured; otherwise, survival will be made to the heirs of the veteran.

Where the deceased veteran was protected under a contract of yearly renewable term insurance, the amount refundable will be paid to his heirs.

The ruling does not affect National Service Life Insurance, Mr. Quinn pointed out. Individuals who may be entitled to benefits under this recent ruling will be contacted by letter by the Veterans Benefits Office.

Broken Valve Interrupts Work At Kelly

A broken water line valve yesterday caused an interruption in the work schedule at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

An official of the Kelly plant said the third shift (11 p.m. to 7 a.m.) was notified not to report for work last night because of the lack of sufficient water for plant operation.

However, the work schedule in all departments was expected to begin with the 7 a.m. shift today, the company spokesman said.

G. Ray Light, water commissioner, said the broken valve was just outside the Kelly plant, and that city workmen were expected to complete the repairs sometime last night.

'Scavenger Hunt' Finds Some Maryland History

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Do you get a kick out of scavenger hunts?

If so, you might enjoy a University of Maryland history course which encourages treasure hunts and historical sleuthing by the students.

The off-campus course on the history of Maryland, taught by Dr. Verne E. Chatelain, has resulted in important “finds” during projects outside the classroom.

The latest two documents were uncovered this spring by Mrs. Helen Hinkle of Cumberland, who didn't even take the course but was helping a neighbor, Mrs. Joseph Massara, do some research on the Flintstone area of Allegany County.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Brown, who live in Pennsylvania just north of Flintstone, heard of Mrs. Hinkle's project and presented her with two historical documents.

Benefits Due In Some WW I Death Cases

The Washington Veterans Benefits Office is checking 1,300 World War I death cases to determine whether or not additional insurance benefits are payable to beneficiaries, or to the estate of the deceased veterans, according to F. E. Quinn, manager of Veterans Administration Regional Office, Baltimore.

The survey will affect only those cases where the deceased veteran carried United States government life insurance or yearly renewable term insurance, Mr. Quinn said.

When either insurance was matured by a finding that the veteran was permanently and totally disabled, he was entitled to monthly disability installments of insurance. These installments were based on the net amount of insurance in force at the time of maturity.

If there was a loan, a lien or other indebtedness outstanding against the insurance on the date of maturity, reduced installments of disability benefits were paid by VA on the basis of the net amount of insurance in force. Monthly payments at the reduced amount were continued, regardless of how many installments were paid, during the veteran's lifetime.

The VA recently has determined that the amount of the indebtedness existing against the policy on the date the insured became permanently and totally disabled, was liquidated upon payment of 240 installments to the insured.

Accordingly, this ruling determines that the monthly rate of disability installments to the veteran should have been increased commencing with the 241st installment.

Where the deceased veteran carried USGLI, the amount of such difference will be paid to his beneficiary, provided the beneficiary survived the insured; otherwise, payment will be made to the heirs of the veteran.

Where the deceased veteran was protected under a contract of yearly renewable term insurance, the amount refundable will be paid to his heirs.

The ruling does not affect National Service Life Insurance, Mr. Quinn pointed out.

Individuals who may be entitled to benefits under this recent ruling will be contacted by letter by the Veterans Benefits Office.
